Examples of “invisible” rules people might learn from their family include:

* Boys don’t cry or show emotion
* We don’t discuss our feelings
* You are successful if you make a lot of money
* You have to be attractive to be important
* Dad must be respected & obeyed
* Your opinions don’t matter so don’t bother speaking up
* It is shameful to talk about sex
* We don’t discuss family problems with people outside of the family (we must always look like a “happy family” to others)

What “invisible” family rules have you learned? Write them here:
Examples of “invisible” rules people might learn from their family include:
* Boys don’t cry or show emotion
* We don’t discuss our feelings
* You are successful if you make a lot of money
* You have to be attractive to be important
* Dad must be respected & obeyed
* Your opinions don’t matter so don’t bother speaking up
* It is shameful to talk about sex
* We don’t discuss family problems with people outside of the family (we must always look like a “happy family” to others)

*What “invisible” family rules have you learned? Write them here:
Examples of “invisible” rules people might learn from their family include:

* Boys don’t cry or show emotion
* We don’t discuss our feelings
* You are successful if you make a lot of money
* You have to be attractive to be important
* Dad must be respected & obeyed
* Your opinions don’t matter so don’t bother speaking up
* It is shameful to talk about sex
* We don’t discuss family problems with people outside of the family (we must always look like a “happy family” to others)

What “invisible” family rules have you learned? Write them here:
Examples of “invisible” rules people might learn from their family include:

* Boys don’t cry or show emotion
* We don’t discuss our feelings
* You are successful if you make a lot of money
* You have to be attractive to be important
* Dad must be respected & obeyed
* Your opinions don’t matter so don’t bother speaking up
* It is shameful to talk about sex
* We don’t discuss family problems with people outside of the family (we must always look like a “happy family” to others)

*What “invisible” family rules have you learned? Write them here:
Credits

Marcelle’s KG Zone
-Thank you for the border!

Creating4 the Classroom
-Thank you for the arrows!

Dandy Doodles
-Thank you for the flowers!

©Copyright 2019 Jessie Drew, LLC  www.mygroupguide.com